

Media Literacy

- [?] Media Literacy is the ability to the ability to read, analyze and critically evaluate information presented in various formats. Television, print, radio, computer are examples of media.
- Being media literate means that you have the ability to recognize the arguments and techniques used to present information or convince an audience to accept an opinion, buy a product, or watch a program.